Stimulus A

Hannah and Hanna by John Retallack

Hannah: That's Margate from my window.

Hanna: That's Pristina, from the window of my old house.
Pristina is the capital city of Kosovo.

Hannah: That's me on the beach.
You can't see me because it's packed.

Hanna: That's me in a truck on its way from Kosovo to Dover.
You can't see me because I am hiding in the truck.

Hannah: That's the block of flats I live in with my nan.

Hanna: That's the window of the room which I share with my mother and my brother in the Hotel Bellevue in Margate.

Hannah: That's my brother Joe.
He's twenty-two and already a policeman.
Ugly, ain't he?

Hanna: This is my mother.
She sits all day looking at the sea from our window.

Hannah: And that's my bloke; everyone calls him Bullfrog —
Well, Bull to his face.

Hanna: And this is my brother Albin.
He walks around all day with the other young Kosovan guys.
They have nothing to do.
Handsome, isn't he?

Hannah: My name is Hannah.
I'm sixteen.
I've lived in Margate all my life.
Margate — what a town!
I hate it!

Hanna: My name is Hanna.
I'm sixteen.
I've lived in Margate for three days.
Margate — what a town!
I love it!

Stimulus C

Unlucky for Some by Roger McGough

What do I do for a living? Survive.
Simple as that. "God helps those who help themselves". That's what the vicar told me. So I went into the supermarket and helped myself.
Got six months. God helps those who help themselves.
